

Pro Integris is a full service engineering and consulting company providing services in energy automation.

Our clients are generation, transmission and distribution organizations, and variety of industry companies and associations.

Pro Integris services: Primary and secondary equipment design and delivery, Project management, Application software design, System integration, testing and site services (installation, commissioning and site acceptance), Training, Maintenance, upgrades and migrations.