The American South offers endless possibilities in combining geography, business support and community...

The American South is one of fastest growing regions for new business locations in the world. Blessed by nature with a sunny climate and plentiful rivers, this region of 17 states offers ample energy resources, almost boundless land availability and a growing population in thriving communities that welcome business growth and economic development.

Throughout the South a comprehensive network of interstate highways connects markets, international airports and ports. Research universities, state and private four-year and two-year colleges prepare an educated and skilled workforce. The South's positive labor environment draws a wide range of businesses—including start-ups, new divisions and those relocating from other regions and countries. States, counties and towns work aggressively to attract business with incentives, move-in ready and build-to-spec industrial parks, and competitive utility costs. No matter where a business might locate in the South, it will find itself close to markets, transportation, energy and labor—all the ingredients for successful business growth and expansion.
